

Auction Restrictions

The following restrictions will be enforced for all auctions occurring in Iowa through May 15, 2020:

Livestock auctions that only include food animals and farm product auctions may occur, as long as no more than 25 people are present in-person.

- People who remain inside parked cars, trucks, or other enclosed motor vehicles shall not be counted in considering the number of people present, provided all people remain inside the vehicle at all times, and the vehicle remains enclosed with all windows, sunroofs, and convertible tops closed.

All other types of auctions may occur, if no more than 10 people are present in-person at the auction.

Best Management Practices

It is critical that livestock auction markets institute immediate changes to prevent the spread of COVID-19 among their staff, sellers, and buyers. The Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship (IDALS) and the Iowa Department of Public Health (IDPH) strongly recommend that all livestock markets adhere to the following guidance.

Critically evaluate each auction to determine whether it needs to be held. If an auction can be postponed, please do so. If you decide to hold an auction, take the following protective measures:

- Use technology to host virtual sales. If you lack the ability to host virtual sales, limit the number of buyers present in the sales ring to ensure that buyers maintain at least a 6-foot separation between themselves at all times.
- Participants should be restricted to actual buyers that have a buyer number.
  - Only buyers with a buyer number should be allowed in the sales ring.
  - If someone has a buyer number and does not give indication they are intending to buy, they should be asked to leave.
  - No spectators (including family members and farm help) should be allowed at the auction market.
- Sellers should unload livestock and immediately leave. Sellers should not be allowed to enter the auction building past the unload area.
- Offer sellers flexibility to pick up their checks (if they cannot wait for the mail) including delivery or picking up their checks from their vehicle while remaining in the parking lot.
- Screen all persons entering the auction market grounds (including all staff, sellers, and buyers) by asking if they have a fever or respiratory illness. If anyone indicates that they have been ill or is visibly showing signs of illness (i.e., coughing and sneezing), deny their entry.
- Close all parts of the auction market that are not directly associated with the sale to prevent people from co-mingling. This would include common seating areas and cafes.
- Post signage at the auction market instructing all staff, sellers, and buyers to practice social distancing, cover coughs and sneezes, and wash hands or use hand sanitizer often.
- Update your website with detailed instructions for sellers and buyers so they understand expectations prior to your sale.
- Clean and disinfect any commonly used areas frequently, including restrooms.
- Restock restrooms with handwashing supplies frequently, including soap and paper towels.

All Iowans have a responsibility to mitigate the impact of this public health crisis. If your auction market cannot abide by these measures, please cancel your sales.
